A message from the editor: Tyler Pacos

As a lifelong resident of Chautauqua County, it is no secret to county residents that there is an abundance of land that covers the furthest most western part of New York State. Covering roughly 1500 sq. miles and a population of merely 127,000 plus according to the 2020 U.S. census, Chautauqua County offers many attractions, both naturally and physically.

While I have lived here my entire life, I have noticed over the early years of adulthood that when it comes to dining, shopping and partaking in other hobbies or activities, it sometimes can be frustrating as most people seem to only migrate towards the four most developed areas in the county, which are Jamestown, Lakewood, Dunkirk and Fredonia. Sure, there are other popular activities that go on throughout the region, but it can sometimes be a struggle to find these “hidden gems” that are offered to residents and tourists alike.

During my time at SUNY Fredonia, I have noticed this issue immensely as most of the student body that attend the university are not from the area. When proposing the idea of this magazine, I even asked my classmates if they have ever heard of certain businesses, restaurants and even towns located in the county, and to no surprise, most were not aware of what I was talking about. I sit here and think about that, and it honestly makes me frustrated, just because I know how much there really is to do around this area.

For this project, I decided to talk about certain food and beverage businesses that are located throughout the county that should be promoted to tourists and college students who attend school in Chautauqua County. I hope that I am able to inspire and motivate people to go out and explore, but mainly try something new in the area. There is not enough emphasis being put on small businesses and how they rely on the tourism industry and the local community to keep them afloat.

This magazine will hopefully inspire you to go out and venture into Chautauqua County and enjoy everything it has to offer.

Sincerely,

Tyler Pacos
